

Homer (800 B.C.)

Odyssey Xvii. 463 Ff

On this Eumaeus took his seat again, and when he had finished his dinner he left the courts and the cloister with the men at table, and went back to his pigs. As for the suitors, they presently began to amuse themselves with singing and dancing, for it was now getting on towards evening.

Translated by Samuel Butler

=====

Published in:

Lazou, Anna & Raftis, Alkis & Borowska, Malgorzata (ed.): Orchesis. Texts on ancient Greek dance. Athens, Greek Dances Theater, 2003.